ENGLAND FORGOT HERSELF.

The Frenzy Over Lady Smith's Relief Was Unprecedented.LONDON, March 3.—A dukedom for Roberts; an earldom for Kitchener and a peerage for Buller, thus say the prophets already busy at this occupation. If only the marvellous wave of enthusiastic rejoicing that swept over the country this week, could find its prototype in material rewards, Lord Roberts and his fellow heroes of the hour would all be made dukes forthwith.The change that has come over Great Britain's war dream can only be appreciated by those who went through those long four months of unequalled gloominess and depression and what are now freely admitted to be defeats.To a certain extent it was quite uncharacteristic of the British race and quite put in the shade any demonstrations that occurred in the United States during the Spanish-American war.Kitchener was relieved and scarcely a surer was noticeable in this densely populated United Kingdom. Lord Roberts, by excellent strategy, caught General Cronje in a vice and annihilated him, and the nation said well done with several degrees less fervor than it would have made the same remark had England beaten Australia at cricket. The barriers of British self restraint and reserve were not yet broken down.Lady Smith was relieved. Then came the desire to publicly exhibit rejoicing which could no longer be denied. The long casualty list passed almost unnoticed. Who cared for the dead except to sing their praises? The intoxication of victory pervaded the length and breadth of the land. The cry of Great Britain's military weakness, the rotteness of her army organization and the menacing acts of other powers was stilled and the tears of those who had become widows or fatherless because of this great thing were only so much more intense to the triumphant war god.Small wonder that the war is the sole topic of the week. Some of the demonstrations quite outdid those of the people of Paris. It takes an effort of imagination to picture the middleclass English girl marching bareheaded through the streets, shouting and waving flags, but this is what occurred.
About 1,000 male and female students of the Kensington Art schools, men in overall, marched singing and cheering to the Albert Memorial and thence to Mrs. Chamberlain's house, where Mrs. Chamberlain smilingly acknowledged the ovation.The scenes after the battle of Waterloo, as described by the writers of that day, were as nothing compared with the scenes witnessed this week.

SCIENCE OF DREAMS.

Results of a Series of Experiments by a German Professor.Sleep is not "the brother of death," as the poets have said from Homer to Shelley; but, on the contrary, "sleep is the brother of life." So Professor Baschide asserts, who, in an article in the Naturwissenschaftliche Rundschau, gives an account of his "experiments upon 36 dreamers." His subjects were of various ages, from 1 year to 80 years.In some cases his observations were continued during the whole night and in others for a great part of the night.
He watched and recorded every change of physiognomy, every movement of the limbs and every speech or sound uttered by the unconscious dreamers. The depth of the sleep was also carefully measured, while from time to time the dreamers were awakened, but without their own perception that the awakening was intentional.The professor obtained, as he writes at length, the following results: (1) We dream throughout the whole of our sleep, even in that deepest sleep which we imagine to be "dreamless." (2) There is an intimate connection between the depth of our sleep and the character of our dreams. The deeper the sleep the further back travels the retrospect into the past experiences of life and also the more remote are the contents of the dream from reality. In a light sleep, on the contrary, the subject of the dream relates to the experiences and excitements of the day and has a character of probability. (3) In a comatose sleep the professor thinks there may perhaps be no dreaming. (4) Persons who assert that they do not dream "are the victims of physical delusion." (5) Dreams of a moderate character remain longest in the memory. The wilder the dream the sooner it is forgotten.—London News.

THE STONE OF GRATITUDE.

An Old Roman Legend That Treats of the Topaz.The topaz is called the stone of gratitude, and the old Roman books record the following legend from which the stone derives this attribute:The blind Emperor Theodosius used to hang a brazen gong before his palace gates and sit beside it on certain days, hearing and putting to rights the grievances of any of his subjects.
Those who wished for his advice and help had but to sound the gong, and immediately admission into the presence of Caesar was obtained.One day a great snake crept up to the gate and struck the brazen gong with her coils, and Theodosius gave orders that no one should molest the creature and bade her tell him her wish. The snake bent her crest low in homage and straightaway told the following tale:Her nest was at the base of the gateway tower, and while she had gone to find food for her young brood a strange beast covered with sharp needles had invaded her home, killed the nestlings and now held possession of the little dwelling. Would Caesar grant her justice?The emperor gave orders for the porcupine to be slain and the mother to be restored to her desolate nest. Night fell, and the sleeping world had forgotten the emperor's kindly deed, but with the early dawn a great serpent glided into the palace, up the steps and into the royal chamber and laid upon each of the emperor's closed eyelids a gleaming topaz. When Emperor Theodosius awoke, he found he was no longer blind, for the mother snake had paid her debt of gratitude.—Exchange.

She Sized Him Up.

"And now," sighed Mr. Huntro, concluding his proposal, "have you nothing to say to me? Am I to hope? Oh, do not keep me in suspense!"
"But rather," replied Miss Goldie Ritchie slowly and thoughtfully, "in suspense and other necessities."For, vulgarly speaking, she was dead on to him.—Philadelphia Press.

Lost Interest.

"That is what I call a 'master stroke'!" he exclaimed.
"Oh, do read about it!" said his wife.
"It's rather long. Look at it for yourself. It's one of the cleverest strokes of diplomacy!""Oh, diplomacy! I thought it was something about golf!"—Washington Star.

FIGHTING IN VENEZUELA.

Indications Are That the Struggle Will Be Prolonged.LA GUAYRA, Venezuela, March 3.— It is believed here that the prospect for a settlement of the revolution in Colombia are poorer now than they have been for some time. One of the most recent reports is that President San Clemente and his cabinet have abandoned Bogota and Anapaima and settled in Tena, north of the capital.This, however, is unconfirmed and there are other reports from equally trustworthy sources denying that General Uribe, with his rebel army, is near Bogota.A detachment of government troops under General Palacio had a fierce engagement with a band of insurgents recently, at a place called Pigeo, about 20 miles from Barranquilla. Both sides claim the victory. It is said the insurgents lost over 200 killed and wounded and 180 were taken prisoners. The government lost at least 160 men.

Needed In His Business.

"I've decided," said the dignified old man, "to let you have that young Brit-ley after all if you are positive that you can't be happy without him.""Oh, father," the beautiful girl cried, "you don't know how happy you have made me! Now I can see the gates of paradise opening. Dear, dear, good, old papa! Let me kiss you for those sweet words! Oh, I can hardly wait to fly to him and tell him the glorious news. He will be so glad! We shall all be so happy now. It seems almost like a lovely dream! I can hardly believe that I am awake! But, tell me, what has made you change your mind?
Yesterday when I tried to plead for him you said you would never permit us to see each other again. Ah, if you had known how those words bruised my heart! What has happened, father, to make you relent?"He kissed her fondly and then, with tears in his eyes, replied:
"I sat in a little game of poker where he happened to have a hand last night, and if we don't get that money back in the family some way my business is going to suffer."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Afraid to Bid.

At an auction sale of miscellaneous goods at a country store the auctioneer put up a buggy robe of fairly good quality. An old farmer inspected it closely, seemed to think there was a bargain in it, and yet he hesitated to bid."Think it cheap?" asked the auctioner, crying a 10 cent bid.

"Yes, kinder," was the reply.

"Then why don't you bid and get it?"

"Well, I've bought heaps of things in dry goods and so on," slowly rejoined the old man, "and I never yet took home anything that the old woman thought was worth the price. If I get that 'ere robe for even 15 cents, she'd grab it up, pull at one end, claw on a corner and call out: 'Cheated again!
More'n half cotton!' That's the reason I don't bid."—Ohio State Journal.
